In Mediterranean cuisine, onions, garlic, & tomatoes, surrounded by olive oil, begin many dishes. Eggplants abound, as do squashes, peppers, mushrooms, cucumbers, artichokes, okra, & various greens & lettuces. Legumes too are ubiquitous: lentils, chickpeas, fava beans in Egypt, green beans in France, white kidney beans in Tuscany. Fresh herbs include rosemary, basil, cilantro, parsley, mint, dill, fennel, & oregano.

Food is integral to the effusive hospitality which is imperative everywhere in the Mediterranean region & has been since ancient days when Abraham ran to slaughter a calf for the Lord, & Odysseus embarked on his famous house-tour of the Mediterranean. Flavours are robust & clear, unfettered by complicated sauces & heavy dollops of cream & butter. Home cooking is dominant as hautés cuisines bow before the traditional genius of the home & hearth
